Arnold Veen | Second Floor TimberWorks Woodturning

Woodturning is Arnold's passion. He is a firm believer that Ontario forests have a lot of amazing woods that can compete globally with exotic species. Arnold showcases those amazing woods through his work.

Kathleen Rodgers | Second Floor

Kathleen is inspired by nature. Trying to create movement in her pieces motivates Kathleen to experiment with different techniques and mediums. The splendour of autumn or large scale floral is often showcased in her work.

Adele Partington

Adele loves the transparency and impressionistic feeling of watercolour. She lives in a Port Severn where inspiration surrounds her, and never runs out of subjects on her wait list.

Heather Smeding

Heather's "storyteller jewelry" is entirely hand-made and crafted with joy in the folk art tradition. She uses simple tools, her methods are grounded in the traditional female handwork she learned while growing up in rural Ontario, and her process is essentially a silent 'conversation' between her and her materials.

Ann Stacey

Ann is best known for her large acrylic floral paintings but most recently has been spending time developing skills in watercolours. Painting mainly from her own photography, she tries through her brush strokes to share the movement, strength and tenderness that prompted her to take that photo and then to bring it back to life. Ann likes to refer to her style as "Realism with a Twist".

Second Floor

Murray Van Halem

It is the common things that compel Murray to paint; busy streets, the factories, the harbours. This is where people live their lives, a place where Murray can speak in paint and record the humble beauty of the simple things around us.

Debra Shelswell

Deb is a self taught mixed media artist whose unusual work reflects her continued fascination with texture. Each piece is intuitively blended composition of diverse elements. This creates unique tactile pieces that stimulate the imagination. Titles are carefully considered as they contribute to the cohesive presentation of the work.

Marilyn Scott

Visually, Marilyn is excited by the constantly changing perspective in our landscape. In painting scenes from nature, it is important to her to capture what is not immediately perceived, such as the human qualities in a tree or a rock that has weathered environmental change. Lately, Marilyn has begun to depict animals and birds as they contribute to the wonder of our world. She continually strives to go past the purely representational to leave room for interpretation and that illusive other that defines art itself.

Kathryn Kaiser Studio

105 Orr Farm Rd.

Kathryn Kaiser

A subject must stir Kathryn's emotions before she can portray it in paint. Through story Kathryn work to bridge the space between the tangible and the ephemeral. She works mainly in oil, acrylic and dry media; materials that allow her to express the vision intuitively and immediately.

Kathryn approaches each piece from a unique perspective — allowing her work to stay fresh, which keeps the process ever evolving and expanding.

Marsha Rosenberg

In Memorium

Marsha was excited to join us as a new member in 2022 sharing her love of traditional acrylic floral painting on bird houses and memory boxes as well as vintage furniture. Her embellishments, especially on those items that could be enjoyed in the garden, were based on her love of floral imagery.

Her family agreed to let us honour Marsha as an artist in the tour because she was so thrilled at having been accepted for the first time.

Her work will not be for sale.
